

Ello! Ello! Ello! What 'ave we 'ere then? A chambermaid making a sneaky phone call in the guests' bedroom? Wishee-Washee ringing Aladdin to tell him he came to the wrong place? Nope—it's DAVID CASSIDY on a typical Sunday morning. Sunday is often the only free day for David during the week, so he spends all day doing chores—and these include carting the fresh laundry around to distribute the things in their right places. But if the phone happens to ring when you're on your way upstairs you can't help but answer it. Hang on, David, that right hand looks a bit desperate . . . No need to tell you what happened next!
