

DAVID CASSIDY'S best kept secrets! POPSWOP tells all

Did you know f'rinstance, that two of his biggest fans are Lisa Presley, daughter of Elvis and Paul McCartney's thirteen-year-old stepsister Ruth . . . when he was first hired to play the part of Keith Partridge, he was told he wouldn't have to sing, but (fortunately for us!) he insisted! . . . he first started acting when he was six years old, when he had a small part in a play his mother starred in! He first sang when he became a choirboy at the local Sunday School. He couldn't have looked more angelic then, than he does now! From then on singing and acting were his life . . . he likes to read books on extrasensory perception (ESP to you!) Remembers sensing one day impending disaster and ten minutes later, someone backed into his car! . . . he enjoys listening to the group Dawn and plays a lot of old Beatle records when he wants to relax . . . his friends always have to help him pack before a big tour, 'cause he's so forgetful. However, he never forgets a friend's or a relative's birthday — a really nice guy to know . . . some people (would you believe?) don't always recognise Dave's face, but the name means something! He has been asked on several occasions whether he's a relative of Butch Cassidy and sometimes he's nicknamed 'Opalong' . . . when driving through Italy he always keeps a pair of skis at the ready, as skiing's one of his fave sports. Actually, he gets around a lot and sometimes has to sleep in the strangest places — once he even camped out in a grass shack, in Hawaii! There are times when he doesn't get any sleep at all. He's been known to work for fourteen to eighteen hours at a stretch, seven days a week and then he flakes out for up to twenty-four hours at a time! . . . we all know he loves animals, but did you know that he really digs giraffes, 'cause, he says, they're so weird looking (so, if anyone wants to buy a pressie!). Still on the animal kick, he likes cartoon characters, 'specially Snoopy and Peanuts. Once he looked after a friend's dog and it used to accompany him when he sang and played his guitar! He hates real fur coats (but didn't we spot a pair of Eskimo boots on his first visit to Britain?) . . . he's quite a talented guy, our Dave. Did you know he could play violin, clarinet and piano, as well as guitar — except for the time he broke his wrist in an accident and couldn't play any! . . . he's a smile watcher and loves to watch people smile, 'cause, he says, everyone's smile is different and we do agree — there's no mistaking that grin of his! . . . he hates discussing politics or religion, as he feels it's pointless, no-one ever wins and a lot of people get mad. In fact, he hates arguments in general, 'specially when it comes to girls. Truth is the quickest way to become an ex-friend of Dave's, is to make him lose his temper! . . . though Dave loves the States, if he had to choose a second place, it would be London, as it has all the advantages of a city — you never feel quite alone, 'cause the people are extra-friendly . . . he has a gold and sapphire ring, which was a present from his father, Jack. He wears it on his little finger and he never, ever takes it off. He used to wear a silver fish around his neck all the time, a present from a girlfriend? However, it's been missing lately, could it be it's all over?? . . . quite a few times in the past couple of months, POPSWOP has heard that Dave's been seen at Heathrow Airport. Could be he's got a double (or is he arriving unannounced!) . . . incidentally, have you heard about Terry, Dave's English double? If you do know him, please leave him alone, 'cause he's too scared to go out these days!
