PROCOL HARUM NEXT IN SEPT.

By DAN MILDREN

The Procol Harum Organization has just announced that they will be touring PROCOL HARUM in September.

It was in 1967 that the English group came to New York with their first album, "WITCHES AREN'T GO TO PLAY."

It is said the album is almost every country of the world, and more important, it was probably the inspiration to the pop music scene — of the 1960s and 70s.

The pop music scene that PROCOL HARUM was unable to repeat that success. — BUT if you have from the music scene to the influence on others, you will find that PROCOL HARUM has, in the last few years, become one of the most respected groups in the world. (Their latest album, "GRAND HOTEL," is an exception.)

PROCOL HARUM will be touring in Australia in September 4, to join the tour which they will have announced but it is believed that there will be two months in Melbourne and Sydney, and one month in Adelaide, Brisbane and Perth.

Exact tour details will be announced in next week's ISSUE.
