

HOLLYWOOD TO MEET

WILD BIBY

Julie loved the rooftop pool at the luxury Continental Hyatt House Hotel on Sunset Strip.

She meets one of the fabulous come-to-life cartoon characters at Disneyland

Julie joins in a recording session with ex-Monkee Mickey Dolenz and friend.

Julie thinks she'll look over the car of one of the many famous groups who stayed at the Continental Hyatt House Hotel!

Like Jonah in the jaws of the whale . . . but Julie's only pausing to study her Disneyland map!

me about my Leicestershire accent, and when I told him I was going home on Sunday he repeated "Soonday"! He showed me his beautiful silver BMW car and invited me to sit in it, and took me to see the gaily-painted Partridge Family bus. He chatted all the time about his new house, work plans and his proposed trip to Britain, and finally signed a special autograph for me with a lovely message which I'm going to have framed.

"It was so marvellous to be with him that the time flew and all too soon he was called back on the set. I stayed to watch the rest of the day's shooting—laughing at DANNY BONADUCE's crazy gags, thinking how pretty and nice SUSAN DEY is, saying "hi" to David's stand-in, but most of all marvelling that when I met him David was as unspoilt and gorgeous as I'd hoped."

The rest of the week passed in a daze with Julie enjoying the novel experience of basking in temperatures of 85°F and over while blazing Californian sun shone on Christmas tree lots and real reindeer on a shop-front display, and Christmas carols played. When she arrived back in London the temperature was 45°F and it was raining hard enough for a typical British Christmas, but Julie had enough happy memories to warm her for a lifetime.

Julie was just overwhelmed at how gorgeous David was when she met him 'in the flesh'!
