

◀ "When I'm in a really fantastic mood, I have to go out and see people and talk to my friends. Luckily, I'm not very moody, or easily upset, so I feel good most of the time. A smile is really important, I think—I know it is to me."

"In my spare time, I like to have a few close friends round, just to listen to some sounds and talk . . . it really relaxes me and helps me keep in touch. It's so easy to drift away from your friends when you're working." ▶

◀ "I'm not a person who likes to argue, but there are lots of things I feel strongly about . . . bad drivers really make me see red. And falseness in a person is bad. So many people act the way they think I want them to—I'd rather see them as they are."

"Cruelty to animals makes me very sad. Sometimes I think I'd like to open a home for unwanted cats and dogs, and the animals who are ill-treated by their owners. I just can't understand people who do things like that. I'm sure you all feel the same." ▶

◀ "Sometimes, I wish I knew what I wanted to do with my life when I'm older. I guess I'd like to marry, one day, and have children. I'd bring them up in the country though—I can't see how children can enjoy life in a city."

"Well, I hope you have lots of happy days in front of you! Make the most of summer, have groovy weekends and make lots of new friends! And don't forget—keep writing to me about yourselves!" ▶
