

CALIFORNIA DREAMIN'

... 'Bout The Sunshine Stars!!

California must really be one of the greatest places around — it's beautiful, it's got the kinda see and sand that everyone dreams of and, of course, it's got the sun — all the year round!! Apart from all this (you mean there's more??) California is the home of Hollywood and also the home of some of our fave superstars, and while living in California is just a dream to us, we found out what it really means — from the people who know!!

ANDY AND DAVID WILLIAMS

Andy and David live in a colonial style home in Sherman Oaks. They both love living in California, in fact, couldn't imagine living anywhere else. Because of the terrific climate and wonderful wide-open spaces, Andy and David spend most of their spare time outdoors doing things like swimming, basketball and surfing. One of the first things they do most mornings is have a swim in their pool and even eating is a thing that's done in the open air! Parties too, invariably mean outdoor barbecues or beach parties, in fact a climate like California's really does mean an outdoor life. Andy and David wouldn't have it any other way!

DAVID CASSIDY

Outside Hollywood, in the exclusive Beverley Hills area is where David Cassidy has his home. For David, with all the filming he has to do for The Partridge Family series, living near the film studio is a necessity, but even if he had a choice he'd still prefer to live in the sunshine State! "Weather really affects me — I love England but the weather could really get me down if I lived there. Here, it's nearly always sunshine which keeps me happy. I don't get a lot of spare time but I enjoy swimming and riding when I get the chance, and this is the place to do it."

BEN MURPHY

Now that "Alias Smith and Jones" has finished in the States, dishy Ben Murphy has a lot more time to himself — and he loves every moment of it. He's a great believer in the healthy life — which means eating the right food and taking plenty of exercise. California can provide everything in the way of climate and facilities that Ben needs for his interests which are riding, surfing, skiing, swimming, tennis, in fact anything sporty. He also likes suntans and that's one thing you're never short of in California!

THE JACKSON FIVE

The Jackson Five (or rather, the Jackson family) occupy a large, rambling house in Encino, California and they love living in this super sunshine place 'cos it means they can do all the things they love to do all the time! Like the other popsters we've mentioned, the Jackson Five take advantage of the Californian climate and spend most of their spare time outdoors. They love swimming and playing basketball, in fact the grounds of the house looks more like a sports centre. There's a swimming pool, a basketball half court, badminton court and archery range! They've also got a large patio where the family barbecues are held. All the boys admit that they couldn't imagine not being able to do things out in the open — California's certainly the place for them!!
