DAVID

in concert

That special day everyone's been dreaming about is nearly here! It's underlined in red in our diaries. The day when we can see David live in concert here in Britain. It will be a most marvellous experience for all of us who go—something to hug to our hearts for the rest of our lives. David will probably be on his way to Europe as you read this. First he'll be doing TV in France, then he'll be around the continent—appearing in towns like Frankfurt and Rotterdam. Then on D-Day (David Day) he'll fly to Manchester—that's on March 12 or 13. Some of us (thousands of us!) will be there, waiting to give him a fantastic welcome to Britain—the best ever! He'll be at Manchester's Belle Vue twice on Tuesday and twice on Wednesday (13 and 14); then it's down to London. He's got six concerts at the Empire Pool, Wembley—one on Friday, three on Saturday and two on Sunday (which breaks the record of five Empire Pool shows given there by the MONKEES). But the times and dates are written on our hearts. What it really means is that thousands of us will no longer have to gaze at a photo of David in concert, we'll only have to close our eyes to see our own memories of David there on the stage, singing just for us.
