

TV IDOLS

DAVID CASSIDY

The mere sight of the Partridge Family star could send ladies of all ages into a swoon thanks to his lustrous shag, gleaming grin and a lean frame accented by snug shirts and hip-hugging bell-bottoms. And when Cassidy strapped on a guitar (which he really did play) to lead his TV family in such peppy love declarations as “I Woke Up in Love This Morning” and “I Think I Love You,” every girl who tuned in hoped he’d someday sing them only to her. The son of actor Jack Cassidy and stepson of Shirley Jones — who also played Mama Partridge on the series — proved a natural actor in addition to his musical skills, guest-starring in many of the decade’s TV hits and scoring a series of his own, David Cassidy — Man Undercover, in 1978.