

TV Scout Report

By DICK KLEINER.

One of the quarrels CBS has with Tim Conway is his refusal to rehearse. He says rehearsing ruins his spontaneity. CBS says you've got to do a little rehearsing, so the cameramen know what's going on and so the people you're working with know what's going to happen next.

If the show had started out a smash, Tim would have prevailed. But with the ratings weakish, he has agreed to rehearse.

Jack Cassidy's son, David, is big with girl teen-agers because of his work on ABC's the Partridge Family.

Jack says David came to him when all the fuss began and said, "Daddy, I'm worried. I don't want to be another Bobby Sherman."

And Jack's reply was—"Who's Bobby Sherman?"

Obviously, he was no "Here Come The Brides" fan.

Jack says David doesn't really like the teeny-boppers going wild over him.

"My son," Jack says, "is really more of a loner. I told him, 'David, I think you're in the wrong business.'

"Actually, none of this has really reached him yet. He's still pretty level-headed. I think that's mostly because Shirley (Jones, Jack's wife and David's step-mother) is with him all the time and he has a lot of respect for her."
