The folks on the Partridge Family seem like such nice people that it's nice (if you can take two nices in one sentence) to report that they are. If you don't believe it, ask Bobby Sherman. One of the goals of the Partridge producers when the show started on the air was to make David Cassidy a bigger hit with the teen-agers than Bobby, then on Here Comes the Brides. Then Bobby's show was ditched and one of the first places he turned up was with the Partridges. Bobby is in line for a new series and you can look for the Partridges to make that scene
