

The Beatles are dead. long live David Cassidy! The little girls are screaming as loudly for David — in London and New York — as they did for Paul, George, John and Ringo. Watching David on television the other afternoon, I figured out his appeal. His erotic gyrations are like those of a small boy who is having a tantrum. The kids can relate to him.