

DAVID CASSIDY TENNYBOPPERS' LATEST DELIGHT

David Cassidy, angel-faced 22-year-old idol of the nation's teenyboppers, knows that his time as a top star is limited, and he plans to make the most of it. He presently is making a fortune on recordings, photo albums, a variety of Cassidy gimmicks, and numerous personal appearances. What is the secret behind his success and what are his plans for the future? PARADE's Lloyd Shearer reports the typically-American Horation Alger story of a youngster who was a nobody just a short time ago, and now is literally a leader of the Cassidy cult, in the April 16 issue of The Pittsburgh Press. You may order your copy now by getting in touch with you friendly neighborhood Press newspaperboy. (Advt.)