

Looks like our next big event will be when David Cassidy visits in late July. I wish I had the jump rope concession at that one.

Speaking of David, did you read where he will be leaving the Partridge Family soon? He feels that he's growing out of that role. He's also trying to show the older fans of rock that he's something of a tough performer, which conflicts with the image he has with many teens over the age of 15 or so. To get some interesting information on Cassidy, see the issue of Rolling Stone from 2 months ago.
